Searle had been the £100 on O'Connor. Searle had been the favorite all along, but the powerful lungs of Norton produced a revulsion of feeling, of Norton produced a revuision of leeling, and soon any kind of a bet might be had either way. As much as £150 to £100 was laid on O'Connor, and five minutes later the same odds were in Searle's favor. Indeed, the course was effectively policed, and some 50,000 occupied a flotilla of small craft that reacted from London to Kew. Searle was sentimental favorite, and all eyes were turned upon him. As the two contest-ants rowed slowly down to the starting point, both were in perfect form, and the opinion of the profession may be gathered from the fact that while the racers were waiting for the word half a dozen sports offered to sell even choice on either for a guinea. ON ROOFS AND BRIDGES.

Twenty thousand people were at Putney, on the bridge, on the roofs of houses, on the banks of the river and in boats on the water. When the word to "go" was given like the wings of two great birds the oars flashed and the men ere away, O'Connor gaining half a boat's langth at the tart. The water was smooth and the tide just at ebb, and for 100 yards the point of Searle's boat was only even with the Canadian's body. Then a great roar rose from the crowd as the Australian was seen to be creeping slowly up on the other. O'Connor realized it and put forth his best efforts, but in vain. In another hundred vards his young antagonist was even with him, and then, for twice that distance both strained every nerve. The pace was the most rapid ever rowed, and was proved by the circumstance that the Australian at Hammersmith bridge, half the dispance by four seconds, when he led O'Connor by a length and a half. It was Searle's race after that. The knowing ones feared that the Canadian had lost his nerve, when, as Searle began to draw away from him at the end of the first mile, he kept glancing across at his opponent, and when he missed a stroke with the right oar and caught a crab the spectators delightedly applanded Searle, who rowed steadily fron start to finish without the slightest indication of nervousness. From the Hammersmith bridge the Australian continued to increase nce between the two boats, and O'Con nor could be seen to be nearly spent. A great many of the spectators did not expect to see him finish the race, but he stack to his oars pluckily, though his strokes were uneven, and his strength momentarily failing.

SOME FAST TIME.

At the bridge at Barnes the Australian was six lengths in the lead, and O'Connor was so nearly played that before the line was crossed his opponent had increased the distance to ten lengths. The opinion of professional and nonprofessional spectators alike was that it was a good race fairly won. The first mile was done in 4:52, Searle then rowing 32 strokes to O'Conpor's 3%. At Hammersmith bridge Searle's time was 8:38 and O'Connor's 8:44, when the pace told or both and O'Connor slackened down to 28 strokes to the other's 30. Searle's time at the finish was 22:42 and O'Connor's Henry Earnest Searle, of Grafton, New South

CANADA'S BIG LOSS.

The Canacks Drop Fully $400,000 or O'Conpor's Defent.

PAPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. TOHONTO, September 9.-The news of the defeat of William O'Connor by Henry Searle, in the international sculling match over the Putney course on the Thames, fell like a thunder clap on Toronto this morning. Ever since Hanlan won such notoriety for Canada's Queen City, as the schooling place for oarsmen, local City, as the schooling place for carsinen, local sports have been attempting te bring out another man to excel Hanhan, Beach and all others. They found their man in O'Connor.

His easy vict aries over Teemer, Gaudiaur and other American scullers greatly strengthened this confidence, and when O'Connor started for England last winter their expectations of complete victory were most sangulae. Local sporting men bet every available cent on their favorite. By March upward of $150,000 was up at odds ranging from 2 to 3 and 3 to 4 on Searle. It soon became apparent that the Australians and Englishmen could outbet the Canadians, and every cent of O'Connor money was snapped up quickly. Enthusiastic friends of O'Connor moregared property to obtain cash O'Connor mortgaged property to obtain each for betting purposes, and before the end of last month a sum equal, if not exceeding that pre-viously wagered, was placed for O'Connor, Last Friday another $50,000 was cabled over to bet on O'Comor. When this sum arrived in England to back the Canadian, it had a magical effect on the betting. The Australians refused to give any more odds, and most of the $50,000 was placed in even bets. Beyond all reasonable doubt O'Connor's defent means a clear loss of $400,000 to Canadian sportsmen.

Pittsburgers Were Surprised. The first announcement in Pittsburg of PATCH window, and the news created a great surprise. There had been considerable betting here on the race during the last few days with O'Connor favorite. All the "talent" were for O'Connor, and the disappointment at his defeat was very great. The surprise was intensified by the fact that O'Connor was beaten so easily. After a little reflection it seemed to be generally conceded that the Australian standard of rowing is superior to that of America. However, the winner of Friday's race will tackle Searle if the latter will row in America.

The next important event in aquatic order is the race of Friday. Teemer is disappointed in rowing in a new boat. Ruddock wired him today that the boat could not be shipped for terminal to the could not be shipped for terminal terminal

It may be well to say again that both men are trained down to perfection, and some close observers think that they are trained too fine. An Eastern man, who is considered a keen observer of the condition of oarsmen, stated to-day that he thought Gan daur is trained down too fine, and that the St Louis sculler looked to him as though he not prove as able an opponent on the day of the race as some of his admirers think he will. Even Hughes, the old trainer who has charge of Teemer says; "I'll have him in trim and have nothing to blow about. I will have him on the course on Friday to pull an oar tha Betting has not opened up freely as yet and Teemer money even is plentiful. There is also Gaudaur money to be found on even bets but few are made and they are made quietty. No odds either way are to be found as yet and it looks as though it will be even betting.

The lot came from W. H. Chipper's Meadowthorpe stud, and they were a likely set of yearlings. Three of the bunch brought a clean $1,000 each, while a fourth was knocked down at $1,650. This quartet has already been engaged for the racing season of 1890-91. A bay colt, full brother of Romaine, was sold at $500, while another colt with royal blood, out of Emily F., brought its owner $1,000. A chestnut colt of the well-known parole stock, only brought $450. The Ferocliff yearlings, eight in number, brought $2,450, while the 20 youngsters from the Lexington stud, aggregated $10.685, It took until 12:30 o clock to sell the two bunches.

The largest prices were brought by the bunch from the Hurstborne stud farm. N. T. Harris, Louisville. The best prices were: Bay colt, by George Kinney, out of Kate Clark (full sister to Blazes), J. #### A START AT ALBANY.

The Grand Circuit Races Resumed at Island Park-A Somewhat Tame Afternoon, but the Spectators were Trented to a Surprise or Two. ALBANY, September 9.-It was with a good deal of curiosity that the regular brigade of grand circuit horsemen came to the Island Park meeting this week. Some of the traditional customs have been changed, and there is, of course, considerable interest as how the new ideas will be received by the public. To begin with, the sport is arranged to extend over five days, commencing this afternoon, while Monday has usually been a time of vacation. Then there are but two harness contests for each day, instead of the three that have us u ally been set down. Lastly, the bangtails have invaded the domain of the trotters, and a teeplechase course has been laid out for the handicaps to be run on Tuesday and Thursday. This last innovation remains to be testedbut the first two have come out well so far, for there was some very good sport at the opening this afternoon, the two events keeping the crowd of 3,000 to 4,000 people interested as long as it is advisable for a day's programme to last. The air was clear and warm, suiting the The air was clear and warm, suiting the horses even better than the people. The card had il names in the two classes, but so many trotters were unable to take part from sickness or absence that the management feared that there would be little interest in either contest. They would be little interest in either contest. They were agreeably surprised, however, when what promised at first to be a couple of straight heat victories resulted in two closely-contested races of four and five heats respectively. The 2-40 trotting class was considered a pretty sure thing for the local gelding, Edward, who, though a novice in turf matters, had shown some trials better than 2-25. After getting two heats in fairly fast time, the favorite was caught off his stride in the third, and another green gelding named Charley Croon scored first place and a record of 2-25. Edward kept steady in the next heat and was able to beat the other youngster in the remarkably good time of 2-214. in the next heat and was able to beat the other youngster in the remarkably good time of 2:21½. The winner is four years old and is owned by Oscar Dacey, a well-to-do lumber merchant of this city. His sire, Volney, is a son of Volunter, while his dam is said to have been got by Woodburne Pilot.

The second event was even more sensational, for with but two starters in the 2:22 claes, Golden Rod, who was thought to have an easy victim in the Massachusetts gelding W. K., after getting two heats with apparently little victim in the Massachusetts gelding W. K., after getting two heats with apparently little effort, while W.K. was very unsteady and betting on the contest ceased, but in the third, the horse with the initials made a rush at the last instant and was able to get to the wire first in the fastest time of the race. He repeated the same performance in the next heat and was a short length ahead, but it would not have been an excessive application of the rule against reneated breaks if the heat had gone to Golden Rod, who had made but one short skip. The judges no doubt did what they thought was right and that was the least chance for the son of Aleyone, for he was so weary in the deciding of Alcyone, for he was so weary in the deciding heat that he did not get to the front at all.

RACING AT BALTIMORE.

small Attendance for the First Day Due to Other Attractions.

BALTIMORE, September 9.-The first day's racing at Pimlico did not draw nearly so large a crowd as had been anticipated. This was perhaps due largely to the fact that the parade in the city completely blocked all the public routes to the grounds. The principal race on to-day's programme was the 2:27 class, for which George A. Singerly's Catherine S had been entered. The Philadelphia mare did not start, however, and in her absence the honors of favorite fell to Budd Doble's Reina. The track was in prime condition and every heat was trotted in remarkably fast time. The summaries are as follows:

ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. 1 PHILADELPHIA, September 9. - The Phillies and Pittsburgs met at Broad and Huntington streets to-day, and the home team won a one-sided victory. The visitors were in the game for two innings. After that the Phillies made runs very rapidly by good, hard hitting, while the visitors were unable to score save in one inning, when Jack Rowe knocked the ball over into the street. It was a short and sharp contest, and the 2,500 spectators were more than pleased with the exhibition. A very high wind blew from the north, making fly balls difficult to judge, and making the outfielders keep on the alert and do some sprinting. The Pittsburg fielders had plenty to do, and Miller, Hanlon and Fields were kept busy. Sam Thompson made two catches after long runs, but Rowe's two-base hit in the first inning was really misjudged by Delehanty, and he should have caught it, SOME BRILLIANT FIELDING. Both teams fielded brilliantly, the third base play of Mulvey and Deacon White and a line catch of the latter from Mulvev's bat being the most noticeable features. Sanders nitched effectively for the home team. Of the six hits made off him two were bunched in the first and three in the second innings, one more being made in the sixth. Jack Rowe was the only visitor who succeeded in gauging Sanders' curves, and he hit him for two bases and a home run. Left-handed Morris pitched for Pittsburg and the Phillies batted him all through the game, making 17 hits for 29 bases. Delehanty was placed in left field because Wood cannot hit a left-handed pitcher. Hoosiers, WASHINGTON, September 9.-Superior work n the field and heavy batting enabled the Senaors to win an easy victory from Indianapolis delivery with any degree of success until the third inning, when Krock, who made his first appearance in a Washington uniform, led off vith a single, which, with a base on balls, fourbase hits and a home run hit by Wise, netter them five runs. In the following inning the Senators added two more runs on three singles and Glasscock's error. This virtually gave the game to the home team, but the visitors played hard, and several times made matters very interesting. Brilliant catches by Seery and Wilmot and the batting of Beecher and Bassett were the features. Score:

President Young Will Have the Matter Settled at Once.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.1 WASHINGTON, September 9 .- "As soon as Johnston's affidavit reaches me," said President Young this afternoon, "I will send copies of the document to the Board of Directors of the League and request a vote on the Philadelphia's protest against the recent 12-inning game with the Bostons. Messrs. Hewitt, of the Washingtons; Day, of the New Yorks; Brush, of the Indianapolia, and Nimick, of the Pittsburgs, constitute the committee who will have the settlement of the matter, and I have Pittsburgs, constitute the committee who will have the settlement of the matter, and I have concluded not to wait till the annual meeting of the League ir. November. Captain Farrar, of the Philadelphias, has already filed his statement, and all that remains is for Johnston to be heard from as to his action in regard to the disputed point. I do not think that there is collusion between the Philadelphia and any other club in the League to push the question of a protest, but if a decision is made tagainst the Boston club its management will acquiesce gracefully. It is a question of a victory or defeat and it is deemed necessary to have the matter settled at once and avoid future complications. These affidavits on both sides vill be mailed to the members of the Board of Directors just as soon as I hear from Johnston and they will vote upon the matter and mill their answers to me.

Presdent Soden has given instructions to Johnston to do as the President of the League wisher regarding the protest and it is likely that the case will be settled before the Bostons start on their Western trip to close the chamilonship season. Farrar has made a positive statement that Johnston did not run to firs base after making the hit which broke the ti, but on the other hand the center fielder of the Bostons has publicly stated that he did go to he base and turned off into the crowd after ie saw the winning run come across the homeplate."

Several times they have been crippled badly. As the Blues have only three games to play yet, and they are a tie with McKeesport for second, they yet consider their chances fairly good for winning the pennant. Of course they would be required to win all three games that they are to contest for to land them winners, and their chances are as good as any of the other clubs. All lovers of the game here wish them all the success that it is possible to get, inasmuch as they were not counted in the race at the beginning of the season. success that it is possible to get, inasmuch as they were not counted in the race at the be-ginning of the season.

The President Graces the City With His Presence-A Great Parade and a Presidental Reception in the Evening.

elebration of the anniversary of the defense of Baltimore, in our second war with Great Britain, commenced here to-day. The opening day was graced with the presence of President Harrison, Secretaries Tracy and Windom, Postmaster General Wanamaker, Governor Biggs, of Delaware; Governor Jackson and ex-Governor Philip Francis Thomas, of Maryland. The latter is the only surviving member of the Thirty-sixth Congress, expenting Henry Watter.

BALTIMORE, September 9 .- The six days' sixth Congress, excepting Henry Watter-son's father. Many other people of national prominence are here.

A committee of gentlemen, headed by General John Gill, James A. Garv and David L. Bartlett, went to Washington last night and escorted the President and his party to Baltimore this morning. The Presidental party consisted of President Harrison, Secretary of the Navy Tracy, Sec-retary of the Treasury Windom, Adjutant General Kelton, D. M. Ransdell, Marshal of the District of Columbia. The principal feature to-day was the grand street parade, which was at once patriotic, historical, industrial, agricultural, mechanical, military and civic. It consisted of 1,000 floats, and altogether 15, 000 men, and was four hours in passing the When it was over the committee took the President, amid flattering huzzahi Mrs. Harrison, who arrived at the hotel from Jenkintown, returned to Washington by an early train, as did also Secretary windom.

In the hotel parlors were many prominent itizens when the Mayor read the engrossed resolutions of the city council, inviting the President to hold a public reception at the city hall. The Mayor, on behalf of the reception committee, invited the President to attend a dinner in his honor at the hotel.

In response the President said: I assure you it gives me pleasure to be on the assure you it gives me pleasure to be on the cordial terms which your expressions have conveyed of your hospitality, and it is appreciated, and I feel the estimation to the limit of my strength. I accede to your requests and hope for an interchange of hospitality and friendship. The President of the United States and the people of Baltimore should be on cordial terms. It gives me pleasure, Mr. Mayor, to place myself in your hands and that of your friends.

The public reception lasted an hour, 2,500 people passing the President and shaking his hand. At 7:30 a special engine took the car to Washington, which the President reached at 8:45. Although somewhat fatigued from the labors of the day, the President heartily commended the Balti-moreans on the success achieved by the display. He will not go to Deer Park until

A PIANO TRUST. in Effort Being Made to Unite Big and Little Manufactories-The Effort May Prove Successful, But it in Doubtfal. PRECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. NEW YORK, September 9 .- A call has been issued to manufacturers of pianos and organs, to meet at 2 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon, to organize a protective association, or trust. A good many manu facturers, including Steinway, Weber and Chickering, have said they would attend the meeting, but none ha promised to enter into the combination proposed. "The movement will never succeed" said a Fifth avenue dealer, today, laughingly. "There have been no end of attempts to form a manufacturers' combination in the last quarter of a century, but none of them ever came to anything. There is no business in the world so rent by bitter jealousies, and so pervaded by distrust. There is no other business where the difference of a name adds hundreds of dollars to the price of a single article. The great manufacturers find it to their interest to sell on long credit. The small manufacturer can only sell short credits, and want to force the big dealers to do the same.

"It is twaddle to talk of uniting such con tradictory interests as these, still it would be a great thing all around if a union could be accomplished. It would benefit the big market. manufacturers in some ways, and the little manufacturers in other ways, and would not hurt the sound dealers, either. It is really a trust that is contemplated, for the scheme proposes to regulate prices and output, and to publish a black list of those who don't pay up to trust companies."

Bill & Bill, who publish a trade news paper which is booming the scheme, say that the organization, it effected, will not come under the head of trusts. Some of the piano men are sanguine that a union is at last on Sous of Veterans Assembling. PATERSON, N. J., September 9 .- Two
